ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Department of Health and Human Services/Administration for Children and Families Second Request for Applications under the Office of Community Services' Fiscal Year 2001 Assets for Independence Demonstration Program (IDA Program)

- Program: The purpose of the program is to provide for the establishment of demonstration projects designed to determine:
- ✓ The social, civic, psychological, and economic effects of providing to individuals and families with limited means an incentive to accumulate assets by saving a portion of their earned income;
 - ✓ The extent to which an asset-based policy that promotes saving for postsecondary education, homeownership, and microenterprise development may be used to enable individuals and families with limited means to increase their economic self-sufficiency; and
 - ✓ the extent to which an asset-based policy stabilizes and improves families and the community in which the families live. There are some 300 IDA programs of various designs operating today in different communities across the country. Most are quite new and all are in the process of learning what design features work best with a variety of circumstances and target populations.
- Funds: $6 million to be available under Priority Area 1.0 for funding commitments for up to 20 new projects, not to exceed $1,000,000 each for the five-year project and budget periods.
- Deadline: August 23, 2001.
- Eligible: One or more not-for-profit 501(c)(3) tax exempt organizations, or a State or local government agency or a tribal government submitting an application jointly with such a not-for-profit organization, or an entity that meets the following criteria:
- (a) a credit union designated as a low-income credit union by the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA); or
 - (b) an organization designated as a community development financial institution by the Secretary of the Treasury (or the Community Development Financial Institutions Fund); and (II) can demonstrate a collaborative relationship with a local community-based organization whose activities are designed to address poverty in the community and the needs of community members for economic independence and stability.

Council for Aid to Education

The 2001 Leaders for Change Award

Program: Applications for the 2001 Leaders for Change Award presented by the Council for Aid to Education. The award recognizes corporate commitment to improving learning at any educational level through the company's systemic efforts in a program that has been operating for at least three years and has received at least $250,000 in support. Programs can be administered by or be in partnership with a nonprofit organization, or be administered independently by a corporation. Previous winners have included programs for teachers' professional development and for improving the technological capabilities of schools and students' families.

Deadline: September 25, 2001.

Eligible: Businesses or their nonprofit partners in an educational program.

Info: Amy de Cillia, CAE, 215 Lexington Avenue, 21st Floor, New York, NY. 10016, Phone: (212) 661-5800, Fax: (212) 661-9766, Email: amy@cae.org, Link: <http://www.cae.org>

American Council of Learned Societies

Charles A. Ryskamp Research Fellowships

Program: Fellowships support advanced assistant professors in the humanities and related social sciences whose scholarly contributions have advanced their fields and who have well designed and carefully developed plans for new research. Fellowships seek to provide time and resources to enable faculty members to conduct research under optimal conditions.

Funds: $60,000, plus $2,500 for research and travel.

Deadline: October 10, 2001.

Eligible: The Ryskamp Fellowship Program is open to tenure-track Assistant Professors who have successfully completed their institution's review for reappointment (or equivalent), but have not yet been reviewed for tenure. Applicants must also be employed at institutions in the US, and must remain so for the duration of the fellowship.

ELDERLY

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Community Partnerships for Older Adults Program

Program: The Community Partnerships for Older Adults Program helps communities develop and sustain comprehensive long-term care and systems of support services to meet the needs of elderly people. The program focuses on two groups: vulnerable individuals at least 60 years old who are at increased risk of disability because of advanced age, chronic illness, ethnicity, poverty, or race, and elderly people with cognitive or physical impairments who require long-term care and supportive services. Participating communities must have a partnership of key groups that may include individuals, government officials, local leaders, nonprofit groups, private businesses, public agencies, and social-service and health organizations.

Funds: Average grants size: $150,000 for an 18-month period.

Deadline: Letters of intent: September 14, 2001.

Eligible: Health providers, federal agencies, foundations, and nonprofit groups may apply. Projects must affect a specific geographic area with at least 10,000 residents age 60 or older, and applicants must demonstrate that at least a partial community wide infrastructure for long-term care and supportive services already exists

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

Quinque Foundation

Fellows Program in Conservation

Program: The Quinque Foundation, a private US-based charitable trust, has announced a partnership with Historic Scotland, an agency within the Scottish Executive charged with safeguarding Scotland's built heritage, and invites applications for the Quinque Fellows Program. Through the program, tradespeople, professionals, scholars, architects, and historians in the conservation and preservation field will travel from the US to Scotland or from Scotland to the US to participate in educational course work and hands-on training and field projects at historic sites. The program's objective is to create practitioners who can contribute to the repair of buildings in the US and Scotland by marrying the practical hands-on skills of traditional crafts with a sound scientific conservation training that includes materials science and conservation ethics.

Funds: Fellowships range from $5,000 to $15,000 and run for 6 to 12 weeks throughout the year.

Deadline: September 24, 2001.

Eligible: The foundation is currently accepting applications from both US-based and Scottish-based preservation and conservation professionals. Applicants must be sponsored by a nonprofit organization as defined by Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. All fellowship grants will be made to the nonprofit organization serving as the grantee organization, not to the individual fellow.

AT&T Foundation
AT&T Industrial Ecology Faculty Fellowships Program

Program: The following are the overarching objectives of the program:

- ✓ To produce university faculty and students who can contribute to solving global and regional environmental problems and help shape environmentally and economically efficient strategies that have a firm scientific and engineering basis; and
- ✓ To advance the theoretical basis for the field of industrial ecology and its application in service sectors, industrial activity, and regulatory arenas.

Among the activities that might be considered by faculty who wish to submit proposals are:

- ✓ Developing models and systems for understanding and quantifying the impacts of services and service infrastructures, such as the internet, on the environment;
- ✓ Understanding how, and developing ways by which, information can be substituted for other inputs into the economy;
- ✓ Designing and piloting of innovative and interdisciplinary courses and curricula which raise the awareness of engineers and scientists about the environmental problems and the contribution which informed technology can make to their solutions;
- ✓ Supporting activities, such as modeling, which bring scientific and engineering realities to the regulatory table; and,
- ✓ Developing guidelines and practical economic and environmental tools for rational decision making.

Funds: Award size: $25,000.

Deadline: September 17, 2001.

WOMEN & GIRLS

American Association of University Women Educational Foundation

2002-2003 Fellowship and Grant Programs

Program: The American Association of University Women (AAUW) Educational Foundation, the largest source of funding exclusively for graduate women in the world, provides funds to advance education, research, and self-development for women, and to foster equity and positive societal change. The foundation provides support to the following:

- ✓ Scholars pursuing a wide range of academic research;
- ✓ Public school teachers encouraging girls' achievement in math, science, and technology; Community activists helping to improve the lives of women and girls through education;

- ✓ Women at critical stages of their careers, as well as those preparing for professions underrepresented by women and women of color.

In addition, special funding is available for a college/university scholar-in-residence to research issues of gender and equity.

- ✦ Career Development Grants support women who hold a bachelor's degree and are preparing to advance their careers, change careers, or re-enter the work force. Special consideration is given to AAUW members, women of color, and women pursuing their first advanced degree or credentials in nontraditional fields. Funds are available for tuition, fees, books, supplies, local transportation, and dependent care. Funds are not available for distance learning. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents whose last degree was received before June 30, 1997. Those qualifying for Selected Professions Fellowships are not eligible to receive Career Development Grants.
- ✦ Community Action Grants provide seed money to individual women, AAUW branches, AAUW state organizations, and local community-based nonprofit organizations for innovative programs or nondegree research projects that promote education and equity for women and girls. Applicants must be women who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents. Grant projects must have direct public impact, be nonpartisan, and take place within the United States or its territories.
- ✦ Professional Development Fellowships of up to $5,000 will fund K-12 women public school teachers to attend the five-day Eleanor Roosevelt Teacher Institute held at the end of July 2002 in Washington, D.C. The fellowship also covers additional professional development workshops or conferences and provides seed money for planning a gender-equity, school-based program. Additional support is available for a colleague to attend the Teacher Institute. Up to 25 Professional Development Fellowships will be awarded.
- ✦ Professions Fellowships are awarded to women who intend to pursue a full-time course of study at accredited institutions during the fellowship year in one of the designated degree programs where women's participation traditionally has been low (see list below). Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents. Candidates in all programs except the master's in engineering and medicine are eligible to apply for support for the final year of study only and are expected to receive their degrees at the end of the fellowship year. Women pursuing master's in engineering programs are eligible to apply for either the first or final year of study. Women in medical programs may apply for either their third or final year of study. Doctoral candidates in engineering must be entering the final stages of writing their dissertations. Special consideration is given to applicants who show professional promise in innovative or neglected areas of research or practice in areas of public interest.

The National Alliance of Breast Cancer

Grants to Help Improve Women's Ability to be Screened for Breast Cancer

Program: Within Our Reach (WOR) is a grantmaking and technical assistance program established by the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations (NABCO), the leading national non-profit information and education resource on breast cancer and a national force in patient advocacy. The program's mission is to increase the number of medically underserved women in the United States who receive breast cancer education and screening services. Evidence suggests that more widespread use of regular screening mammography has been a major contributor to recent improvements in breast cancer survival rates.

Funds: Maximum grant size: $50,000.

Deadline: Letters of inquiry: August 10, 2001.

Eligible: Public and private Non-profits helping to provide medically underserved women with cancer education and screening services.
