NUTRITION

Project Bread

After-School Snack Incentive Grant

Program: Research from Project Bread's Massachusetts Child Hunger Initiative shows that the most effective way to protect children from hunger is to ensure that healthy meals are available throughout the day where kids live, learn, and play. Starting in January 2003, Project Bread launched a new component of the Massachusetts Child Hunger Initiative, with the goal of the project to maximize participation in federally funded nutrition programs in selected communities. With the help of one time incentive grants and technical support, Project Bread assists agencies to expand the After-School Snack Program in neighborhoods with high need, defined as areas where 50 percent or more of the children qualify for free or reduced-price meals. The incentive is for sites not currently participating to join the federal nutrition program, including those sites that may be providing food by using other resources.

Public Welfare Foundation

2006 Grant Priorities

Program:

The primary goal of the Public Welfare Foundation is to address human needs in disadvantaged communities. The foundation's grantmaking strongly emphasizes support for organizations that include service, advocacy, or empowerment in their approach, with particular interest in efforts that combine two or all three of these elements. Service is vital to remedy specific problems, with successful service programs often being the catalyst for more widespread action through advocacy. Advocacy addresses those specific problems in a systemic way through changes in public policy at the local, state, national, or international levels to enhance and broaden the impact of the foundation's grantmaking. Empowerment encourages and enables people in need to play leading roles in achieving policy changes and in remedying specific problems. The foundation also looks for organizations that link their work, or their community and local work, to other efforts to effect broader public policy change, and provides both general support and project specific grants. The foundation's funding priorities for 2006 include:

- community development;
- criminal justice;
