EDUCATION

Department of Education/Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services

Special Education--Research and Innovation to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities Program

Program: The purpose of this program is to produce, and advance the use of, knowledge to: (a) improve services provided under IDEA, including the practices of professionals and others involved in providing those services to children with disabilities; and (b) improve educational and early intervention results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

- ◆ Absolute Priority 1

The purpose of this priority is to fund a center to conduct follow up research, provide training, disseminate synthesized research validated information, and provide national technical assistance on issues in the area of identification and assessment of children with learning disabilities. A project funded under this priority must:

- (a) Review and identify gaps of current knowledge in learning disabilities looking across the areas addressed in the nine white papers mentioned in the Background Statement. Additional research will also be conducted exploring alternative approaches to identification of children with learning disabilities. In the initial meeting with OSEP, within the first month of award, OSEP will clarify with the project a priority list of these issues and the level of effort for each issue;

- (b) In consultation with OSEP and the technical workgroup, design and conduct a strategic program of research to address identified gaps and additional research needs based on the LD initiative. The plan must be submitted within twelve (12) weeks of the award;
- (c) Conduct a review of current State practices in identification and assessment of children with learning disabilities and analyze the variance in these State policies and practices;
- (d) Conduct an analysis of the variation in identification and assessment of children with learning disabilities at the State and local level. Determine factors contributing to this variance and examine these factors across the 3 through 21 age range;
- (e) Design, implement, and evaluate a dissemination and technical assistance approach that links research to practice and promotes the use of current knowledge and ongoing research findings.

◆ Absolute Priority 2

The purpose of this priority is to support a Center to:

- (a) identify effective practices to meet the needs of young children with, or at risk for, behavioral problems and their families;
- (b) foster the exchange of information between parents, family members, and practitioners, as well as Federal, State, and community-based programs that provide services; and
- (c) conduct a program of research to improve services and interventions. In carrying out its activities, the Center must collaborate with education, early care and intervention, medical, and mental health providers, as well as others that identify and serve children with, or at risk for, behavioral problems and their families.

Funds: ◆ Absolute Priority 1: $700,000.
◆ Absolute Priority 2: $750, 000.

Deadline: August 24, 2001

Eligible: ◆ Absolute Priority 1: Institutions of higher education (IHEs), and private nonprofit organizations.
◆ Absolute Priority 2: State and local educational agencies; institutions of higher education; other public agencies; private nonprofit organizations; outlying areas; freely associated States.

HEALTH

Department of Health and Human Services/Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) Related Applied Research Program Announcement 01158

Program: The purpose of this program is to encourage new and innovative methods to further the prevention of HIV infection. Projects that will be considered for funding are applied research for the control and prevention of HIV that address only the following Research Topics:

♦ Community Interventions Among Adolescents

Funds are available to support formative research that will lead to community or structural based interventions to prevent HIV among high- risk adolescents, aged 17 or younger. High-risk adolescents is defined as youth 17 or younger who engage in activities that put them at higher risk for becoming HIV infected. Structural interventions are defined as factors that are barriers to, or facilitators of, an individual's HIV prevention behaviors.

♦ Demonstration Projects for the Efficient Allocation of HIV Prevention Resources

Funds are available to support research to develop decision making tools for the efficient allocation of HIV prevention resources. An efficient allocation is defined as expending resources on interventions that are cost-effective, producing an optimal outcome at the least cost. The research should fully address the data needs and requirements for the practical use of cost effectiveness analysis to allocate resources. Applicants must demonstrate the ability to either identify and evaluate models and tools currently being used by state and local health departments and community based organizations or the ability to develop, pilot and evaluate models and tools usable by state and local health departments and community based organizations.

♦ Biologic Determinants of HIV Transmission Funds are available to support research on biologic determinants of HIV transmission

These determinants will include the effect of antiretroviral use by source partners and other factors such as viral load, viral resistance and replication fitness, genetic factors including HLA class, and mucosal and humoral immunity. Applicants must demonstrate the potential to recruit at least 10 recently infected individuals (ie., infected less than six months) per month with their source partners and a comparison cohort of uninfected but exposed individuals and their partners.

♦ HIV Testing Survey Among American Indians/Alaska Natives

Funds are available to implement the HIV testing survey (HITS) among American Indians/Alaska Natives in urban settings in geographic areas highly impacted by the HIV epidemic. HITS assesses determinants of HIV-related risk, testing and care-seeking behaviors. Applicants must demonstrate the ability to cooperate with health officials, community groups and/or tribal leaders to gain access to this target population and to interview at least 300 persons during the one-year project period. Applicants should also demonstrate a willingness to collaborate with CDC in developing and disseminating findings from this survey.

Funds:

♦ Community Interventions Among Adolescents

$200,000 is available in FY 2001 to fund approximately one to two new awards.

♦ Demonstration Projects for the Efficient Allocation of HIV Prevention Resources

$1,250,000 is available in FY 2001 to fund approximately five new awards.

♦ Biologic Determinants of HIV Transmission

$1,000,000 is available in FY 2001 to fund approximately up to two new awards.

♦ HIV Testing Survey Among Asians/Pacific Islanders

MISCELLANEOUSDepartment of Health and Human Services/Administration for Children and Families Fiscal Year 2001 Training, Technical Assistance and Capacity-Building Program

Program: The principal purpose of this Training, Technical Assistance and Capacity funding is to stimulate and support planning, training, technical assistance and data collection activities that strengthen the Community Services Network. New and revised techniques and tools are needed to fundamentally change the way the Network does business on a daily basis.

◆ Priority Area 1.0 Training and Technical Assistance for ROMA Implementation:

This Priority Area addresses the development and implementation of coordinated, comprehensive, nationwide or statewide training and/or technical assistance programs to assist State CSBG Lead Agency (SCLA) staff, staff of State and regional organizations representing eligible entities, and staff of local service providers which receive funding under the CSBG Act to acquire the skills and knowledge needed to achieve universal ROMA implementation by Fiscal Year 2003.

◆ Priority Area 3.0 Strengthening at-Risk Agencies:

The purpose of this Priority Area is to strengthen the fiscal and management capacity of eligible entities. The CSBG Act requires a State to offer appropriate technical assistance, if appropriate, to an eligible entity in crisis prior to instituting termination proceedings to stabilize such an entity. Projects funded under this priority area provide resources to assist eligible entities in addressing structural, financial and program deficiencies of at-risk agencies.

◆ Priority Area 4.0 Information Sharing:

Web sites have proven to be an effective information-sharing tool and have become an integral part of the OCS CSBG training and technical assistance strategy. There is an official agency OCS/CSBG web site that contains basic program information as well as official regulations and communications to States and Community Action Agencies. Many of the State CAA Associations have web sites including the National Association of State Community Services Programs and the National Association of Community Action Agencies. These web sites contain valuable information and provide access to training and technical assistance resources and materials.

- Funds:
- ◆ Priority Area 1.0: OCS intends to fund one new three-year project at a level of $138,000.
 - ◆ Priority Area 3.0: Approximately 20 projects with duration of 12 months at a funding level of approximately $375,000.
 - ◆ Priority Area 4.0: $40,000.
- Deadline: August 16, 2001.
- Eligible:
- ◆ Priority Area 1.0: Community Action Agencies, and/or State CAA Associations.
 - ◆ Priority Area 3.0: Community Action Agencies and other eligible entities and statewide organizations or associations of Community Action Agencies.
 - ◆ Priority Area 4.0: State CSBG Agency, CAA State Associations, eligible entities or partnerships thereof.

Caring Institute

National Caring Awards

- Program: Each year, the Caring Institute selects 10 men and women and five young adults to receive its National Caring Award. An International Caring Award is also awarded to an individual who has demonstrated extraordinary work on a global level. Award recipients participate in the November National Caring Awards ceremony in Washington, D.C., and receive a bronze statue designed by noted sculptor Frank Eliscu. Each young adult also receives a college scholarship.
- Funds: The award winner will receive a $2,000 scholarship and be flown to Washington, DC to be honored on November 16th, 2001 at the annual National Caring Award Ceremony
- Eligible: Nominees for the award must be in the 12th grade or below, and exhibit innovative and imaginative service projects. Your candidate should have an extraordinary commitment to public service and social responsibility, demonstrate major selflessness and have a long-term commitment to the project or service they provide. Overall, the ideal nominee affects the lives of others in a positive and meaningful way.
